 - 1. Speech:
 - a. DiChiara: Disclaimer, we had this on time, but because there is no senate next week, we have to see it today. We are taking a look at the importance of Día de los Muertos on campus, for several students on campus. It is celebrated by different cultures and traditions, all across North America, Central America, and South America. The tradition is embracing that parted loved ones are still part of our lives, it has profound impact on culture, and allows us to see the importance in this community, and allows for culture diversity, inclusion, and education on campus.
 - 2. Questioning:
 - a. Donahue: What initiatives are you planning for this Proclamation?
 - i. DiChiara: There isn't much interaction from Central and South American communities, but it is still celebrated by them. Although this is celebrated by a small group of people, we still want them to feel represented, and open up opportunities for other communities to celebrate their traditions and cultures.
 - b. Hameed: Are the names on the proclamation accurate?
 - i. DiChiara: Yes.
 - 3. Debate:
 - a. Donahue: I think it is important to recognize this proclamation, for students who may celebrate.
 - b. Discua: I will be voting in favor.
 - c. Vasquez: Abstaining because sponsoring, but voting in favor!
