Dean's Initiatives

- How can we (SG) help advance CREOL?
 - Dean Hagan: In terms of RSOs, there's always been student involvement. The college mission supports the activity. This year, there has been a lapse in that activity. During COVID, the undergrads took the activity as opposed to grad students. A lot of the groups have fallen off the charts and see involvement in groups such as SOS. Rekindle graduate students especially. Keep students.
- Dean Hagan: CREOL wants to make room for electrical and mechanical engineers in the college as well

Initiatives

- Increasing Intercollege Relations
 - Fostering community within CREOL
 - Dean Hagan: Can't directly email students. They do advertise programs, but it is up to them if they're going to enforce that. Full-time marketing and communications person incoming in the Fall. More spotlights on students and alumni that will allow students to see accomplishments.
 - Students don't read their emails
 - *Conversation turned into funds and how RSOs get funding
 - Marketing person will oversee updating the website, there is a lot of missing information
 - Having the new marketing person meet with students to speak about some of those things

Following Up:

- STEM Waiver
 - Dean Hagan: There's been no progress. The state has decided to emphasize science and engineering. CREOL is too niche of a college (according to the state). They probably won't revise their list. They need people in the BOG and legislators to add them to the list. It's not the primary focus of the university.
